

The figure is a matching plot with two columns labeled '1. Permuted' and '2. Original'. Each column contains a vertical sequence of black dots representing data points. Lines connect the dots between the two columns, illustrating the mapping or matching between the permuted and original distributions. A horizontal bracket at the top spans the width of the plot, indicating the comparison between the two distributions. The plot is set against a light gray grid.

2. Original